

M15 COMPUTER TERMINAL

007 MAY OR MAY NOT BE ON HIS MOST DANGEROUS MISSION YET.

Unfortunately, since M sent him off packing round Europe from London 2 weeks ago with the task of 'sorting out' a problem in the form of the evil Dr Yuro Cracy our agents have lost contact with Bond.

Your mission is 3-fold:

Firstly, piece together the fragments of information other sources have reported in, which will tell us where he has been, and when, over the last 2 weeks

Secondly, pinpoint his latest location – where is Bond now? This will be. By default, where he's ended up at the finish of his last leg is his current location.

Thirdly:

Bond will need a piece of equipment to escape: Q gave him a suitcase-full of gadgets, and Bond will have used different ones of these at each location he's visited; however, 1 item on the inventory was accidentally left out of Bond's suitcase. No doubt 007 is in a pickle and needs it now: don't worry about delivery - we'll get it to him - but by process of elimination (and you're all licensed to do that!) work out which bits of kit he's used and which will aid him most now...

Hints:

- The maps are VERY accurate in terms of scale & compass direction – you should be too!
- Bond will only have been to places marked with a black dot on the maps.
- As all professional agents will know, it is important to review the available data before you plan your strategy.
- As 007 is fond of corny puns, you'll find his trail is littered with them: this may help when deciphering clues!

Scoring:

Points will be awarded for both each correct leg completed, and each correct gadget used. In the event of a tie, the team that hands in their answer first will win.